

Data Protection Act 2018 & General Data Protection Regulation

*These notes explain how you can find out what information, if any,
is held about you on Police Computers.*

Your Rights

Subject to certain exemptions, you have a right to be told whether any information is held about you and a right to a copy of that information. The Chief Constable of Police will only give that information if they are satisfied as to your identity. Please note that you are only entitled to receive information that identifies you and/or has been supplied by you. Information about or supplied by a third party may be excluded, summarised or obscured in accordance with the rights of the third party. Where only part of a document relates to your personal data, only this section will be provided. In addition, information that is not personal to you, is not related to you or is not linked to you will also be omitted or redacted.

The Chief Constable's Rights

The Chief Constable of Police concerned may deny access to information where the Act allows, but the main exemptions in relation to information held by the Police are where the information is held for:-

The prevention or detection of crime

The apprehension or prosecution of offenders and giving you the information would be likely to prejudice any of these purposes.

Proof of Identity

Before any information can be provided, North Yorkshire Police needs to be satisfied that you are the person you say you are. Your application must therefore be accompanied by two different official documents, which between them clearly shows your name, date of birth, current address and signature (e.g. passport, driving licence, birth certificate or utility bill). Photocopies are accepted. Please do not send original documents through the post.

Completed forms can be returned to your local police station, or via the post:

Requests made for employment purposes

North Yorkshire Police does not provide local information for employment vetting purposes. If you require a disclosure for employment purposes, and you live in England, Scotland or Wales, please contact Disclosure Scotland via their website www.disclosurescotland.co.uk If you live in Northern Ireland please contact AccessNI via their website www.nidirect.gov.uk

If you intend to work as a paid employee or as a volunteer for an organisation in the UK and you will be in contact with children or vulnerable adults please visit the DBS website <https://www.gov.uk/government/organisations/disclosure-and-barring-service>

Certain employers and organisations such as recruitment agencies may attempt to exploit the Subject Access process by requiring individuals to use it to obtain a copy of their criminal convictions (or evidence that there is nothing held) as part of recruitment or continuing employment processes.

This practice is known as Prohibition of Requirement to Produce Relevant Records and is addressed in Part 7, Section 171 of the Act. It is an offence for a current or prospective employer or recruitment agency to require an individual to make a Subject Access request as a condition of employment or for the provision of goods or services. They should instead be using the existing formal criminal records check arrangements operated by the Disclosure and Barring Service, Disclosure Scotland or Access Northern Ireland.
